FUND-A-NEED: THERAPEUTIC RESISTANCE

WHAT IS THERAPEUTIC RESISTANCE?

First the good news: cancer patients have more treatment options now than ever, and in many cases, treatments produce remarkable results. Metastatic melanoma in adults and acute lymphoblastic leukemia in children are examples of once largely fatal cancers that are now survivable by many patients.

The more sobering news for many cancer patients is that many therapies work for some time, but then they stop working. Researchers call this phenomenon resistance to therapy, or drug resistance, and it is one of the most challenging issues facing the cancer community: our patients, researchers, and clinicians.

Resistance happens when the cancer is initially treated successfully, and later the cancer has found a way around the treatment regimen. When the cancer cells resist the effects of treatment, they grow, either in the original site, or a distant location, causing disease recurrence or relapse. Sometimes resistance develops quickly, within a matter of weeks of starting treatment. In other cases, it develops months, or even years later, with the changes the tumor cells undergo allowing cancer cells to ‘resist’ what was initially a successful treatment strategy.

FUNDING KEPT LOCAL

All dollars raised will go towards cancer research dedicated to therapeutic resistance and will be awarded to the four North Carolina research institutions – Duke University, NC State University, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Wake Forest University.

YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Everyone is impacted by cancer, and donors want assurance their dollars are being utilized towards Victory Over Cancer®, to fund cancer researchers, and to improve outcomes for all cancer patients. Because the V Foundation selectively funds cancer research performed by the BEST scientists and clinicians working at the BEST cancer centers in the United States, I know we are making the BEST cancer investments we can on behalf of donors.

I am incredibly proud that the V Foundation promises that whether you give $1 or $1 million, we will put your donation to hard work.
